

Do not throw this away!
It is a party invitation,
cleverly disguised as a quiz and call for papers!

MILC pop quiz – check all that apply:

1. MILC is:

- Madison Informal Linguistics Colloquium
- Madison Informal Linguistics Collective
- Madison Informal Linguistics Conference
- Madison Informal Linguistics.com
- Madison Insurgent Linguistics Conspiracy
- A linguistics-themed party

2. The date of this year's MILC will be:

- Saturday, October 9, 2004, 8:00 p.m. [← HINT]
- Mere nanoseconds after the Big Bang
- March 27, 1955
- February 29, 1956
- A day that will live in infamy

3. The location of this year's MILC will be:

- Under the PLACE node, wedged in next to DORSAL
- Your house
- A secure, undisclosed location
- 127 S. Brittingham Place [← HINT]

Submit to MILC:

If you can answer any of these questions, you might like to submit to MILC. We will consider proposals on any area of linguistics, real or imagined. Please send an abstract, original or freshly plagiarized, of no more than 500 pages to jsalmons@wisc.edu by October 6, 2004, along with the number of your bank account so that we can transfer your lottery winnings to you immediately. This year, with the move from winter meetings to early fall, there will be a special session, WARM MILC. Submissions for the special session should be marked as such.

If you are confused by this document, please send your questions to jsalmons@wisc.edu or mmacaula@wisc.edu.

To read samples of earlier MILC abstracts and programs,
visit ling.wisc.edu/~macaulay/MILC.htm